Bush to go as CIA head

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush announced today he is resigning as director of the Central Intelligence Agency effective inauguration day.

Bush's announcement was issued by a CIA spokesman. The announcement said Bush "would not remain as director after Jan. 20, 1977."

It said Bush "pledged his continuing full assistance" to President-elect Jimmy Carter during the transition between administrations.

"Mr. Bush informed President Ford and President-elect Carter of his decision," the announcement said.

It gave no indication of Bush's future plans.

Bush briefed Carter for nearly six hours last Friday at the president-elect's home in Plains, Ga., on the highly secret methods the CIA uses to gather intelligence around the world.

Bush told reporters in Plains that he had visited Ford before flying to Georgia and was told to give Carter full access to any information he might desire.

While he was in Plains, Bush refused to discuss his own future and declined to say whether the possibility of remaining in his job had been raised during session with Carter.

Carter has given no indication of whom he might appoint to replace Bush.

Bush took over as head of the CIA last Jan. 30 and immediately was confronted with the job of restoring public confidence in the agency, which had been the target of investigations into improper activities. "No politics, no policy bias, will color the collective judgment of the CIA," he declared at his swearing-in ceremony.

He also pledged to protect the agency's confidentiality. "I will not turn my back from the past," he said. "We've learned a lot about what an intelligence agency must do to maintain the confidence of the people in an open society. But the emphasis now will be on the future."

Fog-covered night

Many Sedalians didn't even see the heavy fog that covered the area Tuesday night because it had disappeared by dawn Wednesday. The lights in Liberty Park were magnified by the heavy moisture of the fog and took on almost a daytime effect in this photograph taken about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Mayor institutes 3 police changes

Three changes in local police department policy, all instigated and authorized by Mayor Allen Hawkins, went into effect Wednesday.

The changes involve the dress code, transporting of officers to work, and the initiation of twice-yearly inventories of department equipment and supplies.

Under the new dress code procedure, Police Chief William Miller, Assistant Chief Charles Knapp and records clerk Henry Randall will be required to dress in full uniform while on duty. Heretofore, they had been permitted to wear civilian clothing.

Because Miller has only one full dress uniform, the Democrat-Capital has learned it may cost around $600 to equip him with a satisfactory number of uniforms. The yearly cleaning and maintenance fee for policemen's uniforms, paid by the city, averages about $200 per policeman.

Hawkins said Wednesday he decided to implement the new clothing policy because "I felt by wearing uniforms, there would be a psychological benefit because people would recognize that Mr. Miller is the chief and Mr. Knapp is the assistant chief and so on. I feel this provides better identification."

Also under the new regulations which took effect Wednesday morning, officers cannot be transported to work in police vehicles. Miller said former Mayor Jerry Jones instituted the practice a few years ago as a fuel-saving move. Miller also noted the procedure was designed to help reduce the parking problem around the old City Hall and the present Municipal Building at Second and Osage.

However, Hawkins explained he has heard of several incidents in the past where cars have not been available for service because they were being used to transport officers to or from their homes. Also, he noted, "I feel it never is good for people to know in advance that a car is going to a certain address. By that I mean people monitoring police band radios who might be planning something illegal."

Finally, Hawkins noted, Jones' order contradicted a specific provision of the police department manual which stipulates police officers may not use police vehicles for private purposes.

A plan to purchase parking permits for policemen's private cars, enabling them to report for duty and park their cars without being ticketed is being worked out. Hawkins noted that because city funds to purchase the stickers will be deposited in the parking meter department account, "it will be really just a transfer of funds from one department to another."

However, Miller explained, some details of the program have yet to ironed out. Because the police department is manned continuously by three eight-hour shifts of officers the day-shift officers will primarily encounter a parking sticker problem. These shifts are rotated every three months. Long-term parking permits sold by the meter department are also for three months. However, the start of a new shift rotation and the beginning date for the parking stickers do not coincide.

"There are still some kinks that have to be ironed out, so in following out the mayor's request, we will necessarily have to proceed on a trial and error basis," Miller said.

The third change, involving the instigation of the twice-yearly inventory, will permit a more accurate accounting of equipment and supplies in the department, Hawkins said.

Second shot urged for some

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The director of the state's swine flu immunization program has advised all local health officials that persons between 18 and 24 should receive two vaccinations rather than one.

Jerry Giffen, a spokeswoman for the immunization program, said today that director James Donoho sent the advisory on Tuesday, but that it has nothing to do with discovery of the first case of swine flu in the nation this fall in western Missouri.

Mrs. Giffen said the advisory was in compliance with regulations issued a week ago by federal immunization officals which called for the second or "booster" swine flu shot four weeks after the first for 18 to 24-year-olds to "make sure their immunity level is sufficiently high."

In another development, Mrs. Giffen said the federal government will supply less than half of the emergency request made by the state for additional swine flu vaccine.

That request for 1.2 million more doses was made on Tuesday after public concern about swine flu intensified in the wake of the report that Larry Hardison, a Concordia, Mo., telephone Lineman, contracted the swine flu in mid-October and recovered.

Mrs. Giffen said a shipment of just more than 500,000 dosses of the vaccine is expected to reach Jefferson City either late today or early Thursday.

"That evidently was all they could put their hands on at this time," she said. "The rest is still promised but when it comes, I haven't gotten any word on that."

Distribution of the first emergency shipment will probably be made on Friday, she said. More than one million Missourians have already been inoculated and about 900,000 doses were still on hand when the state made the emergency request.

So far, officials have said, there is no indication the disease has spread.

Press converges on Concordia man

CONCORDIA, Mo. (AP) — Larry Hardison, who didn't even know he had swine flu until after he recovered, says it was nothing compared to the severe case of publicity he's come down with since.

A network television crew was waiting to interview Hardison when he showed up for work Tuesday morning as lineman and repairman for the Continental Telephone Co. of Concordia, a rural community of 1,854 about 60 miles east of Kansas City.

"They asked me, 'Are you the one?'" Hardison said. "I said I was, and I've been talking to reporters ever since."

By midmorning he was on his third interview and had been unable to put in any time on his job.

"My doctor wanted to keep this down," said Hardison, 32, "but there's no way. You can't keep too many things a secret in a town this small."

Hardison said that for about a week in October, he had felt "punky," with a cough, sore throat, a low-grade fever of 100 to 101 degrees and a slight burning in the chest, "like running in the wind in the wintertime."

Hardison said he missed four days of work, but had completely recovered by Nov. 13, when a blood test showed that he had had swine flu — the nation's first confirmed case this fall.

"I thought it was the flu," said Hardison's physician, Dr. Jerry Meyer. "But the idea of it being swine flu hadn't crossed my mind. Makes it interesting, doesn't it, that we may have had such an isolated case here?"

Hardison said he's been far sicker with other bouts of flu. He said his wife got sick shortly before he did, but didn't see a doctor.

Jim Donaho, director of the Missouri immunization program, said federal authorities have promised an emergency shipment of 1.230,000 doses of swine flu vaccine.

Others show flu-like symptoms

ATLANTA (AP) — The federal Center for Disease Control said today that other residents of a Missouri community where one suspected case of swine flu was detected are showing flulike symptoms and that tests are underway to determine the nature of their illness.

Evidence of what may be the nation's first case of swine flu in nine months was detected in Larry Hardison, 32, of Concordia, Mo. Hardison, who has since recovered, showed flu-like symptoms in mid-October.

Dr. H. Denny Donnell, head of the medical section in the Missouri Health Division, said Monday the state had confirmed that the man's illness was swine flu.

But a spokesman for the CDC, Katherine Lord, said today, "It is insufficient now to say this is a case of swine flu. It is an apparent case of swine flu."

Mrs. Lord said blood samples taken from from Hardison while he was ill showed sufficient levels of swine flu antibodies to conclude that he was "challenged" by swine flu but did not indicate when the contact occurred.

Additional evidence, such as spread of the virus or isolation of the virus itself from persons who contract it, must be obtained before a final diagnosis of swine flu is possible, she said.

Three CDC technicians have been sent to the county to gather the necessary information, she said.

Special service at 7:30 tonight

Sedalians of all denominations are invited to worship at a Union Thanksgiving service at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the First Christian Church, 200 South Limit. The ecumenical service is sponsored by the Sedalia-Pettis County Ministers Association.

Dr. George Kern, pastor of the First United Methodist Chuurch, will give the sermon. Other clergymen taking part in the service are the Rev. Sidney Winston of the A.M.E. Zion Church, who is president of the ministers association; The Rev. Greg Hibbard of Trinity Lutheran Church, and the Rev. William E. Lusk of Calvary Episcopal.

The Rev. Robert Magee, pastor of First Christian, will preside at the service, which will feature special music.

Early Thankgiving feast

Senior citizens at the Sedalia Nutrition Site enjoy an early Thanksgiving feast Wednesday for their noon meal. About 200 people attended a short program and the turkey dinner.

Turkey quake kills hundreds

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A major earthquake struck an area of eastern Turkey near the Soviet border today, killing hundreds and causing widespread destruction, the Turkish state radio reported.

The Kandilli Observatory in Istanbul put the magnitude at 7.6 on the Richter scale. The observatory said the quake hit at 2:25 p.m. (7:25 a.m. EST) and had its epicenter in a mountainous area of Van Province 900 miles east of Istanbul.

"It was the worst tremor (to hit Turkey) since the one that registered 7.9 in Erzincan and killed about 30,000 in 1939," the Kandilli observatory said in a statement.

A spokesman at the U.S. National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said he thought the quake had caused "considerable" damage because the area is populated and has many older buildings.

He put the location at about 20 miles west of Yerevan in the Soviet Union.

The impact in the Soviet Union was thought to be minimal, according to initial reports from the seismic station inn Tbilisi, Soviet Georgia.

The Richter scale gauges the energy released by a quake in terms of ground motion recorded on a seismograph. Quakes of magnitude 7 can cause widespread, heavy damage. The earthquake in Guatemala that took 23,000 lives early this year had readings as high as 7.5.

A radio bulletin said 500 persons were killed in the district of Muradiye and 25 in Ercis and that 95 per cent of the houses were destroyed in those areas.

Turkish news agencies reported that at least half a dozen villages were wiped out.

Soldiers stationed in the area were assigned to rescue work.

Good buddies bring CB cheer for 20-year-old bedridden man

OVERLAND, Mo. (AP) — If it weren't for good buddies like God Momma and the Kansas City Kid, what's left of Big Al's life would be pretty drab.

As it is, Al Linton, bedridden and weakening at 20, is cheered up by talking to hundreds of people each week through the microphone of his bedside CB radio, a gift of area CBers and over-the-road truckers who happened to be tuned in during one of God Momma's broadcast pleas for help in buying the unit.

"I guess I spend 13 or 14 hours a day on the radio," said Al, who smiles a lot as he talks about his friends on the 23 CB channels. "It's great when they stop by the house. They're always bringing me stuff."

Al is a victim of Von Recklinghausen's disease, a progressive illness that leaves little room for hopes for a bright future.

Recklinghausen, which is characterized by a softening of the bones and the growth of cysts or tumors thoughout the body, was passed on to Al by his father, who died of the disease at 36.

"I know I won't ever do any more walking," said Al, "but I hope I get well enough to get around in a wheelchair. Right now, though, I get awfully tired if I just try to sit up too long."

Al has had five major operations since the disease struck in in 1969 and doctors know there are more tumors. They also know that when a tumor is removed surgically the chances are good that another will grow in its place. That's the nature of the disease.

But unlike Teddy Bear, the subject of a syrupy, CB-oriented song which was overdone by pop-country western stations this past summer, Big Al isn't looking for sympathy or tears.

Teddy Bear delighted in having a string of 18-wheelers parked on his block as drivers who felt sorry for the little crippled boy waited their turns to give him a ride in their big rigs.

Big Al, on the other hand, delights in the camaraderie the radio brings and the chances he gets to help out stranded truckers and other people with problems.

A new member of the Missouri Community Alert Patrol (MOCAP), Al can reel off a string of instances in which he has telephoned for help after a trucker, a burglary victim or a mailman in trouble reached him on the radio.

"The mailman thing made me kinda mad," Al said. "He was just trying to do his job when he got pinned in his car by a pack of mean dogs. It took two calls from me before the police ever sent anyone out there."

God Momma, Karen Sue Marcoulier when she is away from her radio, is primarily responsible for getting Al the radio and making him a member of MOCAP. She also saw to it that Al was presented with a complete MOCAP dress uniform decked out with the insignia of inspector general. "I outranked almost everyone who was here for the presentation," Al remembers.

"Al's a good kid and I just wanted to do something to cheer him up," said Mrs. Marcoulier. "He had just come out of the hospital and was really down.

"But I can't take all the credit because a lot of other people helped out. Shutterbug loaned him a unit until we raised enough money to buy him one of his own. And people like the Kansas City Kid and the Candy Kid were all in on it, too."

The CBers' efforts in Al's behalf are continuing because there are hospital bills still unpaid and the prospect of more in the future. Al's mother, Mrs. Sandra Bargo, remarried after the death of her first husband, but her current husband is nearly blind and money comes hard for the family.

"The people out there have really been good to me," Al said, gesturing at the radio by his side. "But I guess the thing I'm proudest of is that MOCAP uniform. I had it on once and Mom took pictures. I really want to wear it one more time."

Make it regular — no olive

William Hagstrom, left, owner of this San Francisco bar, didn't know exactly what to pour Tuesday for his uninvited guest—an unoccupied seven-ton truck which "crashed" the goings-on his place. The truck rolled away from a service station while the driver was filling it with gas. One of Hagstrom's customers was pinned against the bar by the vehicle but was not injured. Damage was estimated at $20,000, but Hagstrom didn't seem to mind that much.

Woman left for dead doesn't testify

PRINCETON, Ill. (AP) — A young Prairie Village, Kan., woman failed to appear here Monday for a preliminary hearing of a man charged with slitting her throat and the defendant was set free.

Marian Kritzler, 24, was picked up by a man last Oct. 1 while she was hitchhiking along Interstate 80 in Iowa. Authorities said he drove her to a corn field in Bureau County, Ill., stabbed her, slit her throat and left her for dead. She was able to walk to a farm house for help and recovered.

Orville M. Reeves, 24, Iowa City, Iowa, was charged with attempted murder in the stabbing. He was arrested four days after the incident when police traced him through a rented car Miss Kritzler had described to authorities.

It was the second time Miss Kritzler had failed to appear for the hearing, which had first been scheduled two weeks ago. Miss Kritzler informed court officials Friday that she would not appear at the Monday hearing either, according to a Bureau County, Ill., sheriff's spokesman.

The spokesman said the young woman had called the court from somewhere in the South, but refused to say where she was or why she would not attend the hearing.

The woman's mother, Mrs. Mildred Kritzler, said Tuesday night she had no idea of her daughter's whereabouts or the reason she didn't appear at the hearing. She said it has been over a year since her daughter lived at home.

OPEC ministers differ on price hike

KUWAIT (AP) — Ten Arab oil ministers meeting here have been unable so far to agree on what increase in the price of crude oil the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries should set when it meets Dec. 15.

Iraq's oil minister said his government demands a 25 per cent boost in the present base price of $11.51 per barrel. Saudi Arabia, the world's largest exporter, has not made its position public but is thought to want the increase held to about eight per cent for fear of further damaging the world economy.

The oil minister of Qatar, Abdulaziz bin Khalifa al-Thani, said his country would support an increase of 10-15 per cent. Many observers expect the hike to be in this range.

Iran, the second largest oil exporter, is not attending the meeting because it is not an Arab nation.

The Iraqi oil minister, Tayih Abdul-Karim, told reporters: "Oil prices should be adjusted to inflation. The OPEC must increase oil prices by at least 25 per cent."

But Mana Saeed Oteiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, recommended a "Judicious attitude ... so that we don't push the U.S. into supporting our enemy (Israel)."

"We should not hit the new American leader Carter with a hard line on oil prices," he said. "If we do, we would be doing exactly what the Zionists would like us to do."

Carter's oil adviser, James Akins, the former U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia, is on a tour of Arab governments for the president-elect and arrived in Kuwait Tuesday. He told Radio Kuwait Carter considers that the Middle East situation and the oil problem "have reached a perilous stage," the government station reported.

In Washington, Carter told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he believes a large rise in oil prices would be a serious blow to the United States and to the developing nations.

Arab members of OPEC attending the Kuwait meeting are Saudi Arabia, Kuwait Qatar, Algeria, Libya, Iraq and the United Arab Emirates. Also on hand are Syria, Egypt and Bahrain. The non-Arab members of OPEC are Iran, Venezuela, Indonesia, Nigeria, Gabon and Ecuador.

The last increase in the oil price was in October 1975.

PSC grants General Tel rate increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission has granted the General Telephone Co. of the Midwest about two-thirds of the rate hike it requested.

The commission, in approving the order on Tuesday, authorized the utility to boost its rates by $1.4 million. General Telephone had sought a $2.1 million rate boost.

The ufility agreed not to increase its rates for pay telephones or begin charging for directory assistance as part of the order. It had requested permission to institute both charges along with a change in installation rates.

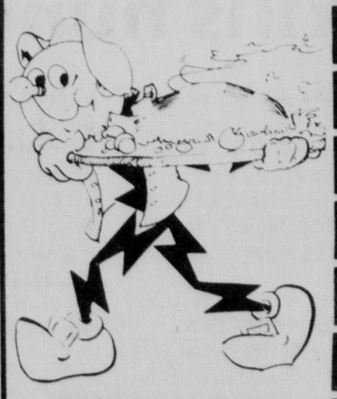

The new rates are expected to raise most monthly service charges by about 14 per cent and by about 7 per cent for multi-party service. The hike can go into effect Dec. 23. The company serves about 70,000 customers in 46 exchanges throughout the state.

Extension and certain style telephones, for which a reduction in rates had been proposed, will be subject to the rate increase.

The commission's order was based on the agreement between the PSC staff, the company and other participants in the case.

Under the settlement, the commission staff will begin a management audit of General Telephone by next May. It will be another in a series of management audits undertaken to determine whether the utilities are being operated efficiently.

Hosing down a hazy blaze

Three Indianapolis firemen, silhouetted against a buttermilk sky, direct a stream of water on a fire on a southside landfill. The fire, which officials said covers about 10 acres of the landfill and may go as deep as 100 feet underground, has been the cause of a sometimes thick and odorous haze that has covered much of the city during the past week. The fire is believed to have been smoldering underground for several years.

Egg production down from 1975

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egg production rose 4 per cent last month from September to 5.4 billion eggs, according to the Agriculture Department. But that was down slightly from Oct. 1975.

As of Nov. 1, there were 277.2 laying hens in the nation's egg flocks, slightly less than the 278.2 million a year earlier, USDA said.

The average rate of lay on Nov. 1 was 63.3 eggs per 100 hens, the same as a year earlier on the same date but down from the Oct. 1 rate of 63.5 eggs per 100 birds.

Discrimination settlement gets Braniff's nod

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Braniff Airways has agreed to a $1.3 million settlement resulting from an employment discrimination suit filed by 10 black Braniff workers in 1973.

The settlement approved Tuesday by U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle awarded up to $40,000 in back pay and damages to 586 Braniff workers.

Braniff also agreed to hire more blacks in such work classifications as aircraft mechanic and customer service agent.

The company and two unions, the International Association of Machinists and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, also agreed to changes in seniority and transfer practices.

Objections to the settlement were raised by some Mexican-American employes who said the suit dealt only with blacks. They said the settlement does not prevent a suit by Mexican-American workers.

Dog intelligence quiz tests Rover's smarts

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Worried that Fido just may not have it upstairs? Give him the dog intelligence test — he could be smarter than you think.

Kathryn B. Coon, a 33-year-old school psychologist who developed the test, says that with a little patience and a lot of dog treats an owner can tell whether his pet is brilliant, average or a mutt moron.

The test tries to measure such things as a canine's ability to remember, deduce and make judgments, she said in an interview.

"I developed it because so many of my friends commented on how dumb their dogs were. The dogs really didn't seem to be that dense," said Mrs. Coon, who considers herself a dog lover.

The test consists of 10 problems which the dog has to solve in 15 seconds each. They use props such as chairs, cups, shoeboxes and towels.

In one problem, the dog must remove a treat that's hidden in a shoebox with a 2-inch-square hole cut in one side.

"That's the toughest question. Only about 44 per cent of dogs can pass it," Mrs. Coon said.

The average mutt scores about 5.75 out of 10, she said. Ten is rated "brilliant." Two or less — don't expect your dog to fetch the paper.

Mrs. Coon said male dogs have done better than females on the tests she's given so far. She also has found that mixed breeds apparently are about as smart as pure breeds.

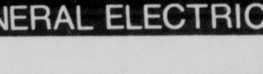

Among pure breeds, hounds are smartest, and "toy poodles did the worst of all," she said.

One difficulty in administering the test is that owners must use "whatever really turns their dogs on" as treats or the animal will score low.

Kansas officials study flu strain

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — State health officials expect to receive within a day or two a blood sample from a person in Johnson County who has had influenza, for testing to determine if it is the so-called swine flu strain, Dr. Donald E. Wilcox reported Tuesday.

Wilcox, director of the state Bureau of Epidemiology, said the ill person's physician had contacted the state Department of Health and Environment about his patient.

If confirmed as swine flu, it would be Kansas' first confirmed case, although there have been previous rumors of suspected cases.

Wilcox did not further identify the suspected Johnson County case.

Utility asks higher rates for Sedalia

Missouri Public Service Co. (MPS) announced Wednesday it has filed a request for increased natural gas rate schedules with the Missouri Public Service Commission (PSC) for the company's southern gas system in Western Missouri, including Sedalia, Clinton, Lexington and Marshall in this area.

William E. Van Dyke, MPS vice president of sales, said the rate change request is a "tracking increase," or a pass-on of increased wholesale costs of natural gas purchased from Cities Service Gas Company. The increase requested, he said, is equal to the company's increased cost from Cities Service. MPS' net income will not be affected, he said.

Van Dyke said the rate increase to MPS residential customers effected will average about $1.45 per month.

This latest increase brings the total average monthly rate increase to $4.43 since the start of the year. The rate increase schedule for the past 11 months is as follows: January, 51 cents average monthly increase; March, $1.61; May, 21 cents; July, 51 cents; August, 6 cents; September, 8 cents; and November, $1.45.

Nebraska man arraigned on forgery charges

A Nebraska man was arraigned in Magistrate Court Wednesday morning on forgery charges following his return here from Lincoln, Neb., Tuesday by Pettis County sheriff's deputies.

Thomas P. Bousfield, also known as Rene D. Desforges, 51, who last address was South Sioux Falls, Neb., signed a waiver of extradition to Sedalia to face the charges for a second time.

Bousfield is charged with "possession of a forged instrument and intent to utter it" and was arraigned on the charge Oct. 1, 1973, in Pettis County Magistrate Court. He was later released on $3,500 bond, but failed to appear for his trial in Circuit Court at a later date. It was later learned he was in jail in Iowa at that time.

Bousfield, then going under the name of Desforges, allegedly attempted to cash a forged check on Sept. 28, 1973, at Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust, then Sedalia Bank and Trust. The check was for $175.55 and written on a Maryville, Mo., bank.

Following his disappearance from Sedalia, Bousfield served time in jail for different forgery charges in Iowa, Leavenworth, Kan., and Nebraska.

He remains in the county jail in lieu of $50,000 bond, pending his Dec. 14 preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court.

Crash in the dark

The wreckage of Raymond Bailey's car sits in a heavy fog by the MKT railroad tracks on Route B near Windsor Tuesday night following Bailey's collision with a northbound train. Bailey suffered back injuires and was in fair condition at Winsdor Hospital Wednesday. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Train hits car near Windsor; driver injured

WINDSOR — Dense fog was the apparent cause of a car-train accident Tuesday night that left a 25-year-old Windsor man in fair condition at noon Monday at Windsor Hospital.

Raymond Bailey was admitted to the hospital about 9:30 p.m. with a possibly fractured back, Dr. C.A. Weltscheff told The Democrat-Capital.

According to a spokesman for the Highway Patrol, Bailey was driving his car west on Route B about five miles west of Green Ridge when he slammed into the middle of an MKT freight train headed from here toward Sedalia. The car spun around and landed in a ditch on the northwest side of the railroad crossing.

The spokesman said Bailey told officers at the scene that someone else was in the car at the time of the accident but had jumped out and run away. Although Bailey reportedly said the passenger was bleeding profusely, no blood could be found in the vicinity of the wreck. After searching the area and finding nothing, the officers, including members of the Pettis County sheriff's department, the Green Ridge police and the Highway Patrol, were able to determine that the man they were searching for, described only as a man named "Gallagher," was home in bed asleep.

Authorities received the first report of the accident at 8:09 p.m. The heavy ground fog restricted visibility to about 20 to 30 feet.

The freight train reportedly went on to Sedalia, but the extent of its damage was not known.

Teasdale concentrates on budget, legislation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov.-elect Joseph P. Teasdale is studying budget material and proposed legislation in preparation for taking office Jan. 10, according to members of his transition commission.

"He's got all that he can do just like we do," said Harold Fridkin, one of three members of the commission.

Kenneth Rothman, the state representative who has been designated House Speaker for the upcoming session of the legislature, met with Teasdale Tuesday, and Sen. Norman Merrell, the future president pro tem of the state Senate, met with him today.

Because Teasdale is so busy, Fridkin said, he won't be attending the Governor's Conference on Education to which he had been invited to speak.

Lt. Gov. William Phelps, a Republican, had asked the incoming Democrat to come to Columbia Dec. 3 to address the 700-member conference, which is in the process of making education-related recommendations to the Missouri Legislature.

Fridkin, a Kansas City Lawyer, said today that the former Jackson County prosecuting attorney had received hundreds of speaking invitations for the period between now and the inauguration.

Fridkin said Teasdale was just too busy, but that he would be sending a representative to the conference.

The Transition Commission, which is made up of Fridkin, Kansas City lawyer Patrick Hartigan and assistant St. Louis circuit attorney Cliff Faddis, has set up offices in Jefferson City for the transfer of the state executive office to Teasdale from Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The commission announced today that William L. Kimsy, the director of governmental services of Arthur Young and Co. of St. Louis, and Carl B. Barnes, head of management services for Price Waterhouse and Co., will work "seven days a week, 12 to 14 hours per day," preparing a budget which Teasdale is to present to the legislature Jan. 18.

"The budget situation is very important to all of us and we're getting on top of it," Hartigan said.

Fridkin said Kimsey and Barnes were being paid expenses by the commission, but that their time was mostly volunteered by the two accounting firms who employ them.

The commission has also met with some state agency directors, and is in the process of evaluating personnel and programs, Fridkin said.

Autopsy today on man who died after hit by car

An autopsy was being performed during the noon hour Wednesday on the body of a 79-year-old Sedalia man who died at Bothwell Hospital Tuesday afternoon after suffering a broken leg when struck by a car Monday.

Elmer Strine, 1523 East Ninth, received a compound fracture of his right leg at 12:30 p.m. Monday while walking north on New York across Broadway.

He was struck by a car driven by Walter V. Porter, 61, Whitewater, Mo., police said, in the intersection of Broadway and New York as the Porter vehicle was traveling west on Broadway.

A spokesman for Bothwell Hospital said Strine died about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. Pettis County Coroner Dr. John Owens said he would conduct the autopsy. If that autopsy indicates Strine died as the result of the injuries he sustained in the accident, he will become Sedalia's first traffic fatality of 1976.

Mr. Strine was born near Clifton City in Cooper County on September 2, 1897, son of the late John C. and Osa Wimer Strine. He was married to Miss Mayme Wood on March 20, 1918, and she survives.

He had been a farmer, had worked in the construction business, and was a member of the Clifton City Methodist Church.

Other survivors include a son, John Strine, 804 West Third; a daughter, Mrs. Charles (Mildred) Stilfield, Route 6; four grandchildren and three great- grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Friday at the Ewing Funeral Home with the Rev. Dean Catlett, pastor of the New Hope Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in the Salem Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Damage suit seeks $25,000 judgment

A $25,000 damage suit was filed in Circuit Court Wednesday morning by Lenis Hood, Route 4. Named as defendant in that suit was Gregory Woods.

The suit stems from an automobile accident on 16th Street in Sedalia on May 28, 1974. According to the petition, Mrs. Hood's auto was stopped in traffic when it was struck in the rear by Wood's westbound auto.

Mrs. Hood is seeking the $25,000 judgment for alleged back and neck injuries, medical expenses and the loss of earnings.

Offices to close for Thanksgiving

All local federal, state, county and municipal offices will be closed Thursday in observance of Thanksgiving Day.

The local job services office will also be closed Friday.

Also, there will be no rural or city mail delivery service Thanksgiving Day by the local post office. All service windows will be closed.

Regular special delivery service and post office box service will be provided. Collection service will be provided on a regular holiday schedule, as posted on each box, for one and two-star collection boxes.

Municipal Court will not be held Friday, with all cases originally set for that day being rescheduled to be heard beginning at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 30.

Persons scheduled to report to the local job service office Friday should report next Monday through Thursday or any day the following week.

Although there is no evidence of a flu outbreak in the community, she said, an "influenzalike illness" has occurred in the community where Hardison lives and a college population is in the same county.

She said results are expected Friday from the analysis of 20 blood samples that were taken from persons in the area who were displaying flu-like symptoms and from persons who have had close contact with Hardison.

The swine flu virus can be spread by human-to-human contact or by human-animal contact. She said CDC technicians do not know yet whether Hardison may have contracted the illness from an animal.

Rural break-ins are investigated

The Pettis County sheriff's department is currently investigating the break-in of two homes in the northern part of the county on Tuesday.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said thieves broke into the home of Leo Taylor, Route 1, LaMonte, between 11:45 a.m. and 2:50 p.m. Tuesday. Two guns, a cameo ring, color television and CB base radio were taken.

Just a few miles away, the home of James Wilson, Route 4, was broken into between 11:15 a.m. and 12 p.m. Five guns and a fur coat were taken there, Fairfax said.

Similarities between the two incidents and their close proximity are being investigated, Fairfax said.

In other police news:

— Terresa Vanderpool, 200 South Washington, reported theives took an eight-track tape player, valued at $120, from her car while it was parked behind the Rustic Lounge, 421 South Engineer, between 2 and 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to police.

— Robert E. McCauley, 804 Ruth Ann, reported four wheel covers, valued at $120, were taken from his 1976 Cadillac while it was parked on the West side of Summer Set Apartments Monday evening.

High court strikes down ban on news

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down, at least temporarily, an Oklahoma judge's order limiting news media reporting of a case involving an 11-year-old boy convicted of murder.

The court set aside a "gag order" imposed by Oklahoma County District Judge Charles E. Halley, which had prohibited news reporters from publishing or broadcasting the boy's name or photograph — even though both had been widely displayed before.

The court's refusal to go along with the Oklahoma judge was in keeping with its ruling last summer in a much-publicized Nebraska murder case. In that case, the Supreme Court came very close to outlawing such reporting restrictions.

The justices said in the Nebraska case that pre-trial restraints on reporting rarely can be justifed because of the many other steps avaliable to insure fair trials.

Sedalia man gets 5-month sentence

Martin R. Davis, 23, 3601 South Grand, was sentenced to five months in the county jail by Circuit Judge Frank Meyer Tuesday afternoon, following Davis' Sept. 28 guilty plea to felony charges of stealing property valued at more than $50.

Davis was charged with the theft of a citizens band radio, valued at $105, from a truck owned by Lawson Hanrahan, 1309 East Ninth, while the truck was parked at that address on June 21.

Survivor still in serious condition

COLUMBIA — Mrs. Margaret A. Eppes, 50, 2411 Margaret, remained in serious condition Wednesday morning at the University of Missouri-Columbia Medical Center here.

Mrs. Eppes, who suffered severe head injuries, is the survivor of a head-on collision which claimed the lives of four other persons Friday morning on Route B, approximately 2½ miles southwest of Sedalia. Listed in critical condition through Sunday, her condition was listed as satisfactory Monday. However, a hospital spokesman downgraded her condition to serious on Tuesday.

Work patterns change Thanksgiving traditions

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Thanksgiving is still our greatest feasting holiday. Americans continue to want turkey with giblet gravy and pumpkin pie. We still like to see members of the family reunited for Thanksgiving dinner. Technology and job opportunities, however, alter old family ways. Although the old-time spirit is strong, many of the early American customs have been changed.

That is the observation of Mercedes Bates, vice-president of General Mills, director of its Consumer Center, and formerly food editor of McCall's magazine. Knowledgeable in the ways of American families she says, "Our work habits affect the Thanksgiving picture. No longer can we be certain that a son in New York or a daughter in San Francisco or a brother in Miami can afford or have the time to travel home to celebrate. Too expensive for many relatives. So gradually neighbors or good friends or often people who have no place to go are invited to fill the place of faraway relatives. This is more and more true every year.

"Modern technology is making unnecessary many of the drudgeries our parents went through preparing Thanksgiving dinner. Peeling potatoes for a crowd is no longer necessary with the ready-to-use variety of potatoes.

"More than 50 per cent of women work outside the home today. That fact certainly alters the pattern of Thanksgiving dinner preparation," she adds. "These women prefer dishes that can be pre-cooked and stored in the freezer ready to be heated. Gelatine molds, ready to serve from the refrigerator, take precedence over the more time-consuming types. Turkey and stuffing have resisted changed to a degree. Different families like different stuffing. I grew up in Oregon where my mother always added a few raisins to the stuffing. Today, I must have a few raisins in my stuffing to be happy. On the Eastern seaboard, it's oyster stuffing. In the South cornmeal stuffing; in the West Coast area often you find dried fruits in the stuffing. And the turkeys today are so beautifully cleaned, they need very little preparation for the oven."

She points out, "Vegetables taste as good today even though they are prepared differently. Many excellent ones squash is seasonal and many would not consider it a Thanksgiving dinner without squash. And there is a traditional longing for white onions.

"Another change is the use of wine. More and more Americans now serve either white or red wine regularly. So, many families will expect it at Thanksgiving.

"The old-fashioned tradition of Thanksgiving dinner demands pumpkin pie or some version of it. I buy a fine pumpkin pie from a reliable bakery. Then I spread whipped topping over it. It is always a success. Sometimes I spread it with softened ice cream. Equally successful. Incidentally, did you know that there is pumpking ice cream available? Delicious and certainly timely."

Thanksgiving, she believes, is not the day of slavery in the kitchen it used to be but the old-time spirit is still there.

CARE gift cards help needy families

NEW YORK (AP) — Special holiday gift cards to send greetings to friends, relatives and business associates, which at the same time will help needy families around the world, are now available from CARE, according to Frank L. Goffio, executive director of the overseas aid and development agency.

"The cards will inform each person on your list that you have given to CARE in his or her name, to aid these poorest of the poor," Goffio said.

"Send the names and addresses on your holiday gift list, with a minimum contribution of $2, to CARE, Dept. HOL, Box 570, New York, N.Y. 10016, or any regional CARE office," Goffio explained. "The attractive cards and envelopes will be sent to you by return mail."

Goffio cited examples of how much good a holiday gift can accomplish: $5 serves up to 30 children a daily bowl of porridge for a month; $10 provides a group of farmers training for growing more food; $15 keeps a CARE-MEDICO nurse on duty for a full day training local nurses and tending patients; $25 gives thousands of children nourishing food, helping them grow into healthy, productive adults.

Holder helps during tax time

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that so many packaged foods contain so much salt. It is a wonder more of us do not have high blood pressure. I find this true of canned soups, chips, weiners, some brands of bacon, etc. — you just name it. It seems the FDA would do something about this. — LEA.

DEAR POLLY — When income tax time came around we used to always have trouble rounding up such things as drug store receipts, etc., but now I have taped an envelope to the inside of my kitchen cupboard. As I get any receipts they are dropped in this envelope and are all together in a handy spot. (Polly's note — If an envelope is not large enough you might use a shoe box with a slit in the top as I do.)

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is to help wheelchair patients keep their lap robes over their feet to keep them and the backs of their legs covered. Sew a strip of soft cloth across one end of the back of the robe. Stitch together at each end and across the bottom. I also make another seam down the middle to make two big pockets for the feet. — DAVIE.

DEAR POLLY — I put a little piece of adhesive backed flannel on the back of my house key. I have no more fumbling in the dark trying to find the right key. — MRS. E.P.

The local flu clinic: good and bad news

Pettis County's two-day mass swine flu immunization clinic turned out to be a mixture of good news and bad news.

The good news was that the clinic was held on Sunday and Monday without a hitch or any significant ill effects. The myriad administrative details that are associated with a project of this scope were handled in an expeditious and efficient manner.

The Pettis County health nurses and the Sedalia Jaycees deserve most of the credit for this. Every problem seems to have been anticipated in advance, and therefore few developed.

Once area residents recognized the need for volunteers, which was still acute by last Thursday, they came out in large numbers, as they are wont to do. As a result, the actual operation of the clinic went smoothly.

The bad news, or at least the disappointing news, is that more people did not take advantage of the opportunity. A total of only 5,644 people received the vaccine, which is about 25 per cent of those in the county who could have done so.

Others, however, have received the vaccine through their own physicians, so the total picture may be better than it appears. Still, this is far short of the 7,000 to 10,000 that county health officials were geared up to handle.

Had the news out of Concordia broken earlier, the local picture might have been different. On Monday it was reported that the first case of swine flu in the country, since it was identified nine months ago, was detected last month in the Lafayette County town about 30 miles northwest of Sedalia.

This has brought federal and state epidemiologists into Concordia, and has resulted in the State Division of Health requesting additional vaccine for the state. So far there has been no indication of the flu spreading beyond the one man who had an apparently mild case.

We hope it stays that way.

Who has economic answers?

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — When Mr. Ford became president, he called in batteries of economists for a series of summit meetings. There were economists of the left, of the right and of the middle, liberal and conservative, business and labor, academic and government. The works.

Cromley

Some reporters sat in on those meetings, designed to develop thoughts for managing the flagging economy.

Regardless of announcements made, one thing came through loud and clear to those of us present. The economists could not agree on the problem and they could not agree on answers.

What was done, therefore, was to leave it to Arthur Burns and his Federal Reserve Board — with Burns saying, honestly and consistently, that management of the money supply itself was not enough. But it had to do because no one could get together on a program.

Now President-elect Jimmy Carter has the problem, or will on Jan. 20. If newspaper and magazine reports are correct, he must depend on the same assorted body of economists. Or their cousins.

Yet there are no more signs today than there were two years ago; that these men can agree on what must be done — or what shouldn't.

Worse, there are faint signals, if reports are to be believed, that despite Mr. Carter's soothing words, the new president and Burns are moving toward a head-on collision. Presumably Mr. Carter wants to step up the supply of money at a faster rate, though he has not said so. And Burns has served notice he plans no such accommodation, but rather intends what might be interpreted as a slight tightening.

This leaves Mr. Carter lost in a plethora of conflicting advice, with no one to guide him. His situation, of course, is no better and no worse than that of the last half dozen presidents. None of them did well in the crunch on meeting economic crises.

What this means is that Mr. Carter, no more than any of his predecessors, knows how to reduce unemployment and inflation in the short run. Nor in the long run either, except by cut and try — a minor fix here and there.

In the end, I suspect, any satisfactory solution depends less on economic-financial steps than on somehow building confidence among a great many groups.

Confidence among consumers so that they will increase their buying.

Confidence among manufacturers so that they will take the risk and spend the capital necessary to buy new plants and modernize equipment. Confidence among investors so that they will buy the stocks and bonds the companies sell to achieve this expansion and modernization.

And confidence by management and labor that the future will be stable — so that there will not be successive rounds of price boosts and hefty labor requests in honest anticipation of continued inflation.

How a man — even if president — goes about inspiring this widespread confidence among those who have lived through the depression of the 1930s and the current recession is a mystery. The political scientists and psychologists are even more divided than the economists. And as ineffective, as we learned in the Vietnam war.

Jurors chewed out by Marine general

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Hard-working, hard-nosed Lt. Gen. T.H. Miller, a model Marine officer from his close-cropped hair to his brass buttons, doesn't believe in coddling his troops.

For example, the idea of a Marine sampling marijuana, which Miller regards as the weed of the long-haired set, is enough to bring fire to his face. He would drum the offender out of the corps and chew out any officer who showed leniency.

Indeed, Miller wrote at least 16 letters to officers on discharge boards, scolding them for their leniency. This sort of intervention in legal proceediings is strictly prohibited by both military law and Marine Corps regulations.

It happened a couple of years ago when Miller was the convening authority of the administrative discharge boards at Cherry Point, N.C. He had his own ideas about justice, and he made sure the military "jurors" under him knew what his ideas were.

The story is told in documents that were never intended to be released to the public. After analyzing the documents and soliciting appraisals from two experts in military law, we have concluded that Miller committed serious improprieties.

To take a typical letter, Miller wrote sternly to an officer who served as a juror: "Your recent participation as senior member of the Administrative Discharge Board ...was recently reviewed by me ...

"I am taking this opportunity to inquire why you believe that a person convicted of possession of marijuana should be retained in the Marine Corps ...

"It appears very obvious to me that possession of marijuana is not an honorable pursuit and one not easily confused with what Marines and the general public have come to expect of Marines who receive discharges under honorable conditions."

Perhaps mindful that military jurors are supposed to be independent, the general explained unconvincingly that he was writing "not to influence your future action but to point out what I believe to be an error in judgment on your point."

The effect, of course, was to influence the military jurors whom Miller said he wasn't trying to influence. If their rulings displeased the general, quite clearly, they risked losing promotions and hurting their careers.

Miller's intervention came to the attention of Marine Corps headquarters, which assigned Gen. Louis H. Wilson Jr., to investigate. The discharge board officers, at the risk of offending the big brass, generally agreed that Miller's letters were improper attempts to influence their decisions.

APPALACHIA NIGHTMARE: Strip miners are literally blasting the impoverished residents of Appalachia out of their homes. Walls have been cracked, windows shattered and a child hit by flying rock.

The Federal Bureau of Mines, which is supposed to give some protection to the strip miners' neighbors, has devoted less than one per cent of its budget to this problem.

A study by the Center for Science in the Public Interest charges that the blasting caused "over $200 million damage in 1975 to 10,000 private citizens." Over the past 10 years, 75,000 people have been affected and the damage has exceeded $1.5 billion.

The blasting has used almost as much explosive power as was expended per square mile in the Vietnam war. Terrain has been torn up. In some localities, wells have caved in and the water table is falling.

The explosions have also produced serious human problems. A child playing in a yard was hit by flying stone. A woman lost two houses from the erratic vibrations. And it is the victims, not the mine owners, who pay for repairs.

The Bureau of Mines has the power to end some of the devastation by issuing new guidelines for state enforcement agencies. But they plan to wait almost two years before taking action.

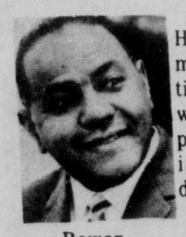

Footnote: Mines Bureau Chief Thomas Falkie told our reporter Chris Wright that further study is needed before new regulations can be issued. He said the Center's facts are not well-documented.

Cutting through the rhetoric of the right

WASHINGTON — Benjamin Hooks, newly-chosen leader of the NAACP, tangled with conservative columnist George F. Will on "Meet the Press" recently.

Rowan

My reaction was that Hooks responded admirably to Will's questions which were loaded with the inflammatory phrases "forced busing" and "reverse discrimination."

I was certain that Hooks had carried the day when Will resorted to putting in a column all the things he wished he had said in the TV confrontation. This leaves Hooks at a considerable disadvantage since he has no column in which to expose Americans to all the arguments and witticisms he may have thought of later.

Which prompts me to use this column to say a few things to fellow columnist Will and anyone else inclined to swallow the line he is dispensing.

If Hooks, the NAACP or other black leaders were demanding quotas giving blacks 11 per cent of the seats in the Senate, 11 per cent of the professorships at Harvard, or 11 per cent of government jobs from GS 16 through the cabinet, with no regard for merit, Will might have some reason to decry "reverse discrimination." But blacks are not asking for that, and I know that is not what bothers Will.

Some weeks ago on the TV show "Agronsky & Co.," Will started to rail against "reverse discrimination," or any court order setting hiring goals or "quotas" where a pattern or history of discrimination exists. To get Will away from vague conservative philosophizing onto the issues of real life, I referred him to an honest-to-goodness court case.

I pointed out that a federal judge had found that Alabama had never hired a black person as a state trooper in its entire history. The judge considered this prima facie evidence of racial discrimination. I asked Will if he believed the judge was right in ordering Alabama to hire some blacks. His answer was no.

George Will is a bright young man. He would be outraged if anyone suggested he is a racist, which he is not. But he lets his conservatism lead him to a stance that would perpetuate the worst kind of racism Alabama could fashion for almost two centuries.

That federal judge set "hiring quotas" with the goal of making Alabama's highway patrol reasonably reflective of the people who live in that state. The judge knew that it strained any concept of common sense, let alone intelligence, to assume that Alabama's highway patrol had been kept lily white for so many generations because no black in the state was qualified to be a state trooper.

The judge knew that Alabama had practiced vicious racial discrimination. Now, by what logic does Will conclude that a judge who orders the end of such discrimination is practicing "reverse discrimination"?

Will attacked Hooks for not accepting the term "forced busing," arguing that Hooks is a "skillful lawyer, and a shrewd politician," and he knows that busing in Boston "is not spontaneous."

Will is "a skillful writer and a shrewd articulator of conservative ideologies," so he has to know that this society has compulsory school attendance laws for children of certain ages. The truancy officers seize children who disobey it and judges jail parents who defy it. But who goes around talking about "forced schooling"? Or "forced Social Security"? Or "forced incomes taxes"?

I'll never believe that Will isn't perceptive enough to understand that the word "forced" tucked in front of "busing" adds an ugly connotation that touches the gutstrings of racism in many Americans.

Will also indulges in that current litany of people who have practiced racism all their lives, codifying their racism where possible, but now have discovered some inviolate "principle that the law should not take notice of a citizen's race."

It seems to me elementary logic that when a state, city, university, corporation or whatever heaps injustice upon people because of their race, the law absolutely must take notice of race in fashioning a remedy. It is not the judges who make race an issue; it is the racists whom they seek to rein in.

Will's column suggested that this point never dawned upon him. I suspect it has. Will's differences with the federal judges apparently grow out of nothing more than the fact that he is busy dispensing "conservative principles" while the jurists are busy trying to dispense justice.

And the Air Force is requesting $79 million for this weapon, up from only $29 million in fiscal 1976.

Hospital interviews third emergency firm

The third and final candidate for the contract to furnish physician coverage for the emergency room at Bothwell Hospital was interviewed by the hospital's Board of Trustees Tuesday.

Like the other applicants, Emergency Medi Cor Inc., Kansas City, offered varying degrees of coverage ranging from weekends only to weekends and week nights to round the clock coverage.

Dr. Robert K. Clendenin, representing the firm, told the board that coverage would be provided on a $22.50 per hour basis. However, he stressed that the firm's goal is to eventually operate without a minimum guaranteed fee.

Under the proposal outlined by Dr. Clendenin, the hospital would ultimately become a billing agent for the medical emergency medical group. The emergency physicians would bill individual patients through the hospital. In return, the hospital would receive 15 per cent of the group's professional charges for billing, collection and bad debt sharing.

"We'd like to think we can get off this minimum guaranteed fee. We like to think we can have physicians working like regular doctors and bill the patients for services provided," said Dr. Clendenin.

He stressed that the group would not be in competition with local physicians. He said local doctors can agree to one of three plans for working with the emergency service. One plan would allow the emergency physician to treat patients and send a report to the patient's family doctor. Another plan allows for treatment by the emergency physician with the addition of a telephone consultation with the family doctor. The third plan allows the emergency physician to treat a patient only when given approval by the family physician.

Dr. Clendenin suggested Bothwell Hospital engage in a weekend and week night program. Under such a plan, emergency physicians would staff the emergency room from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. Monday through Thursday and from 6 p.m. Friday until 6 a.m. Monday.

Most of the doctors employed by the service would be coming to Sedalia as commuters. Some might come from Columbia, according to Dr. Clendenin.

He told the board that the fee for a "routine visit," such as treatment of a cold would probably cost the patient around $15. He said the lowest fee for a visit would be around $11.

In other action, the board voted to submit $1,500 to aid State Fair Community College in planning a program for a proposed associate degree in nursing. Golden Valley Hospital, Clinton, also is contributing $1,500 to the program.

Club members hear report on center program

An explanation of the special classes for hearing impaired children, funded by the Sedalia school system and held at the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center, highlighted the weekly meeting Tuesday of the Sedalia Noon Optimist Club at the Bothwell Hotel.

Mrs. Emma Curry, 509 West Broadway, said the program began after she conferred with therapy center director Roger Garlich. The children are taught the "seeing essential English" system of sign language which she credits with improving their communicative ability.

In club business, it was announced that Larry Stobbs, governor of the Missouri District of Optimist clubs, will be the guest speaker at the ladies' night meeting Tuesday at the State Fair Motor Inn.

Leading the meeting Tuesday was club president Bob Settles, with Fred Biggs offering the invocation.

Gets help with Getty financial aid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge George Harris, maternal grandfather to Jean Paul Getty III, has been given help in managing Getty's financial affairs.

Harris was appointed conservator for his grandson in April 1975 after a court ruled that Getty, 19, was a spendthrift. Getty's paternal grandfather was the late oil billionaire J. Paul Getty.

But Superior Court Judge Neil Lake on Monday determined that Harris was having difficulty overseeing Getty's affairs, largely because he lives in San Francisco and Getty lives in Los Angeles. Lake appointed attorney Alton Myhrvold as co-conservator.

Getty receives a $1,000-a-month allowance from his mother, Gail Harris Getty, who paid his ransom after he was kidnaped in Rome in 1973. He and his wife, Martine, 26, have a 21-month-old son, Paul.

Atlantis said only figment of imagination

ATHENS (AP) — After 13 months of searching the Aegean seabed, Jacques Cousteau says he's concluded that the legendary city of Atlantis was just a figment of Plato's imagination.

"Plato ... built up a fantasy of Atlantis as his model for a perfect civilization," the underwater explorer said Monday. "Atlantis was never a reality, but the myth was carried on after Plato."

Cousteau said his expedition had turned up thousands of ancient artifacts and several ships dating from as far back as 3,000 B.C.

Baez to Belfast to end violence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Folksinger Joan Baez says she's going to Belfast to help try to end the violence in Northern Ireland.

"It's a cause that's tailor-made for beliefs I've had since I was 9 or 10 years old," the 34-year-old pacifist told a news conference Monday. "I expect to have a very good time there and to be very frightened."

Miss Baez said she will leave today for two weeks of rallies and marching at the invitation of the Peace People of Ireland, a nonviolent movement organized by Protestant and Catholic women.

Blood drive set for Nov. 30 here

A goal of at least 220 pints of blood has been set for the local blood-donation drive to be held from 11:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Nov. 30 at the Masonic Temple, 601 West Broadway, it was announced by JoAnn Lambirth, chairman of the project.

"Blood donors are particularly needed after the long Thanksgiving weekend," Mrs. Lambirth said. "Since Sedalia will hold the only bloodmobile in this 40-county region Nov. 30, it's up to us to boost the blood supply."

The local blood drive will be conducted by the community blood center of Kansas City, which serves 40 counties. Community blood center officials estimate that more than 260 donors are needed every weekday to fill patient needs in the 67 regional hospitals served by the center.

Mrs. Lambirth emphasized that persons recently immunized for swine flu will be accepted as blood donors without any waiting period. Blood donors must be in good health and be between the ages of 18 and 65, 17-year-olds may give blood with written parental consent.

Persons wishing to contribute should call the local Red Cross office, at 827-0618 for an appointment.

Jays, Kewps dominate district football picks

Jefferson City, headed for the state Class 4A championship game this Saturday against St. Louis Sumner, landed eight of the 11 spots offensively and six of the 11 spots defensively on this year's All-District Football Teams announced Wednesday by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association (Central Division).

The Jays have dominated their opponents this season, as evidenced by their 12-0 record. Among the repeaters from last year's squad named again from Jefferson City were Chrys Myers, a senior center; defensive back Rod Burnett, another senior; and senior punter Dan McDaniel.

The other spots on the offensive and defensive Class 4A Teams went to Columbia Hickman and Rolla. Hickman placed three on the offensive team, four on the defensive team and also had its placekicker, Kerry Hatton, named to that spot.

Rolla, one of only four Class 4A teams in the Central District of the MSSA, placed defensive lineman Frank Inman on the team.

The other Class 4A in the district, Sedalia Smith-Cotton, was not represented on either the offensive or defensive teams, but was represented in the honorable mention listings.

Named honorable mention offensively was junior running back Brian Buckner and tight end Marty Breeze. San Hargrave was selected honorable mention on the defensive line.

There were only six repeaters from last year's all-district squads. In addition to Myers, Burnett and McDaniel in Class 4A, offensive end Tony Stiefel, North Shelby; running back Ken Schuller, Fulton-MSD; and punter Dennis Bacon, Fulton-MSD, were selected again in Class 1A.

Skyline, Central victorious

BUFFALO — The battle lines have been drawn for Friday night's semifinals here in the annual Buffalo Invitational Basketball Tournament.

In Tuesday night's concluding first-round action, second-seeded Skyline (Urbana) dropped Bolivar to the losers side of the bracket with a 61-46 victory. In the other first-round game, Springfield Central, seeded third, defeated Lebanon, 44-39.

The semifinal pairings for Friday night's games find top-seeded Springfield Parkview going against Buffalo, seeded fifth and a first-round winner of Sedalia Smith-Cotton; and Skyline facing Central.

The tournament is scheduled to resume here tonight with a pair of losers bracket semifinal games. In the 6:30 p.m. opener, El Dorado Springs, a first-round loser Monday to Parkview, will go against Smith-Cotton. The other game tonight in the consolation side of the bracket will feature Bolivar and Lebanon.

Tonight's winners move into the consolation final, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Saturday. The losers of tonight's games are assured of a-third game in the eight-team team tourney in Friday's seventh-place game.

Tuesday night, Tim West poured in 20 points to lead Skyline to its win over Bolivar, and Central turned back Randy Walters' 19 point effort for Lebanon with a balanced attack for a first-round win.

Scoring

Springfield Central (44) — Jamerson 7, McBrayer 9, Hairston 6, Cook 8, Greenway 5, Martin 9.

Lebanon (39) — Baughman 5, Florence 8, McAllister 4, Walters 19, Eidson 1, Vaughan 2.

Half time — 18-17 Central.

Blue Birds push unbeaten string to 5

LaMONTE — All five Cole Camp starters scored in double figures and the Blue Birds coasted to a 70-39 victory over the LaMonte Vikings here Tuesday night in a Kaysinger Conference basketball clash.

After an early battle, the Blue Birds blasted to a 19-9 first quarter advantage scoring eight consecutive points midway in the opening period. At one point in the quarter, LaMonte's Wayne Childers brought his Vikings even with Cole Camp, but couldn't keep the score any closer.

Childers was the only Viking in double figures and led both teams in scoring with 21 points.

By halftime, the Blue Birds eased to a 35-17 lead and were outscored by LaMonte in any one of the four quarters.

Cole Camp, now undefeated in five games and 2-0 in the conference, bolted to a 20-point 47-27 lead at the close of the third quarter before triggering a 23-point final quarter charge.

Delwyn Duncan, Kim Gooch, Tom Schroeder, Greg Harms and Jerry Robinson all scored in double figures for the Blue Birds.

"Even missing all the free throws that we did," said Cole Camp's head coach, Bob Farrington, "We had pretty good balance scoring with our first five in double figures."

Farrington credited the changing defenses used against LaMonte to enable the early Cole Camp lead. "We changed our defenses a lot, but I wasn't disappointed in the defense tonight," he said.

The Cole Camp girls flew past the Vikings in the girl's basketball game 45-12.

After the Blue Birds reeled off 20 straight points, LaMonte's Kim Davis finally put the Vikings on the board with a long shot from the right corner with 4:22 remaining in the first half.

The Vikings then scored eight consecutive points following Davis's bucket before trailing 24-10 at the half.

Cole Camp embarrassed the Vikings 21-2 in the final half enroute to victory.

Cheryl Templeton scored 11 points leading Cole Camp while LaMonte had three girls score four points a piece.

FUSES

If your lights suddenly go out, or if you've plugged an appliance or lamp into a recepticle and the electricity goes off, you've blown a fuse. There are certain rules you should follow before you change a fuse. Usually, the center area of the blown fuse will be black, or the flat silver bar will be separated. This indicates the circuit which is blown. By unscrewing the blown fuse and replacing it with another, your electricity will be restored. It's very important for everyone's safety, that you replace the fuse with a fuse of the same amperage. Remember that nothing else should ever be put in the fuse box in place of the fuse.

If, when you put in a new fuse, it immediately blows out, it means something is still short circuited. So unplug everything in the part of the house where you lost power, and put in another fuse. Then, one by one, plug in each appliance until you find the one that's giving you trouble by blowing the fuse again. Now that you've located the problem, unplug your problem appliance, put in one more fuse, and don't replug that appliance until after it's been repaired. If a fuse blows out periodically without apparent cause, it probably means you have too much current on the circuit, and you'll need a qualified electrician to remedy the situation.

Onofrio will stay on as MU coach

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Coach Al Onofrio, who came under fire as a result of Missouri's up-and-down football season, will be retained as head football coach, the university announced today.

Herbert W. Schooling, chancellor of the university's Columbia campus, said the decision to retain Onofrio was based on the recommendation of the 13-member intercollegiate athletic committee, which voted unanimously to recommend the coach's retention.

"We believe Al Onofrio has a football program that reflects the highest ideals of intercollegiate athletics and the Missouri tradition in which we all take great pride," Schooling said at a news conference.

"I am pleased the athletic director and the committee put a program that reflects integrity, honesty and player welfare above 'win at any cost,'" Schooling said.

Athletic Director Mel Sheehan said the decision on the length of Onofrio's contract and salary will be taken up at a later meeting of the committee.

Onofrio, although not present at the news conference, issued a statement:

"I don't know what there is left to say except that our staff is happy to get on with our recruiting and plans for the 1977 football season. I personally appreciate the prompt re-endorsement of our program and of our coaching staff by the University of Missouri's Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics, administration and friends throughout the state."

The athletic committee, originally scheduled to meet in two weeks, moved its meeting forward after public pressure to fire Onofrio.

Onofrio, head coach since 1971, came under fire for two successive losses to Big Eight archrival Kansas. In each of the last two seasons Missouri would have had a bid to the Sun Bowl had it won the Kansas game.

The Tigers, after upsetting Ohio State, Southern California and Nebraska, finished the season with an unimpressive 6-5 record.

"I have no impression whatever," Onofrio said of his appearance before the committee, and declined further comment.

Schooling, before the meeting, said that "probably the thinking of some people was clouded by the emotions of the Kansas game, and as time has passed I think people have begun to look at the situation more objectively.

"Everyone is in agreement to the quality of the (football) program and the integrity of Al Onofrio. He is concerned about the welfare of the men on the team and has been honest in recruiting.

"Even those who say he should not be the coach any longer believe what I have said. They are saying, 'Yes, we want those things but we also want to win the ball games that we lost.'"

A few weeks after he was named to succeed Dan Devine in 1971, bumper stickers proliferated throughout the state proclaiming, "Away we go with Onofrio."

"I hope," the heavyset, dark-visaged man quipped at the time, "They never erase the second and third words."

And after a dreadful 1-10 first season, Onofrio had, right from the start, good occasion to mull the insecurities of coaching.

But the next year, on a November day in 1972, Onofrio's Tigers pulled off the first of what would become an unbelievable string of upsets.

Seven days after a 62-0 blasting by Nebraska, the Tigers limped into South Bend, Ind., and stunned undefeated and seventh-ranked Notre Dame, 30-26.

There probably wasn't a more shocking upset in college football until the Tigers did it again in 1975.

On a steamy season opener at No. 2 ranked Alabama, Onofrio's crew dismantled the Crimson Tide's feared wishbone and whipped Bear Bryant, 20-7. 'Bama won every other game it played and capped the year with a Sugar Bowl victory over Penn State.

Missouri, in the meantime, struggled through an up-and-down season that saw them come within an eyelash of upsetting national champion Oklahoma, but losing miserably to Kansas and finishing 6-5.

This year the Tigers posted one of the most bizarre 6-5 seasons on record.

Taylor's late charity shots lift Kansas City

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't want New York to forget where I came from," said Brian Taylor. His defense — plus Phil Johnson's coaching — have given the town something to remember him by.

Taylor was a schoolboy star in Perth Amboy, N.J. and an all-Ivy player at Princeton, then spent four years with the New York Nets, helping them to a pair of American Basketball Association titles. But he ran into contract problems with the Nets, problems which resolved themselves in a trade to the Kansas City Kings.

His family was in the stands Tuesday night to watch Taylor play his first National Basketball Association game in Madison Square Garden against the Knicks. It couldn't have been more dramatic — his two free throws at the final buzzer gave Kansas City a 100-98 victory.

The game boiled down to the final five seconds. It was New York's ball out of bounds at midcourt, with the score tied 98-98.

"Jim McMillian was the primary target on the in-bounds pass," Knicks Coach Red Holzman said.

It never came about, thanks largely to Johnson's coaching. Figuring the Knicks would try to get the ball to one of their forwards, like McMillian, Johnson put four big men in his lineup and left Taylor as the Kings' only guard.

"I put in by big line, with 6-foot-10 Richard Washington instead of guard Ron Boone and Bill Robinzine on McMillian, so we could switch on every man and every play inside," said Johnson. "If they were going to win it, they ha to win it from the outside."

Which is what they tried. With time running out, Walt Frazier looked desperately for someone to receive the in-bounds pass. Earl Monroe finaly made a move to the basket, then went back outside to try and shake free from Taylor. It wasn't to be.

"I overplayed Earl and counted the seconds to myself," Taylor said. "With five seconds left I was thinking steal. I saw the ball coming, I got it and I took off."

Taylor stepped in front of Monroe, turned and plucked Frazier's lob pass out of the air. He broke downcourt, racing both the Knicks and the clock.

"I didn't have too many choices," Taylor said of his mad dash. "I thought about stopping and taking a jumper, but something was telling me not to take it."

He didn't, going straight to the hoop instead. Frazier, who had raced back trying for defensive position, collided with Taylor as he took off for his layup. The ball rolled off the rim, the final buzzer sounded and the referee's whistle blew, all at the same time — a blocking foul on Frazier.

Taylor stepped to the free throw line and calmly sank his first try to win the game. He then added a second foul shot for good measure.

Ringen, Dale combine for 50 points

OSAGE — The Stover Bulldogs outlasted the Osage Indians 79-75 here Tuesday night.

Stover's Mike Ringen and Tom Dale kept the pace for the Bulldogs scoring 27 and 23 points respectively.

At the close of the opening period, Stover held a slim 22-20 advantage, but at the half, the score was knotted 40-40.

The Bulldogs then pulled away in the third quarter with a 62-55 advantage over the Indians and held off a fourth quarter surge by Osage.

Osage outscored the Bulldogs 20-17 in the final period keeping close pace.

Tom Grahm led both teams in scoring pouring in 28 points for his Indians in a losing effort.

Stover made it a sweep of the doubleheader taking the junior varsity match 26-25.

Myron Fischer led the Bulldogs' attack with 9 points.

"It was a good game," said Stover coach C. L. Brownsberger of the varsity match. "It was a real fast ballgame and it was a real physical game — that's for sure."

Scoring

Stover (79) — Dale 23, Garr 9, Burke 16, Ringen 27, Witt 4.

Osage (75) — Bogliani 5, Kurlbaum 10, Grahm 28, Bosworth 12, Witt 4, wist 2, Martin 14.

Tiger grapplers earn tie

"About the best thing I could say is that it's like kissing your sister," Keith Buescher, Smith-Cotton's wrestling coach said after Tuesday night's opening-season tie with Springfield Glendale.

After trailing 17-0 through the first four weight classes, the Tigers battled back to take the lead 26-20 with only the heavyweight match remaining.

But Richard Camirand of the Tigers was pinned with 30 seconds gone in the second period and Glendale earned a 26-26 tie.

"The kids never gave up...not even when they were down (17-0) early in the match," said Buescher. "They knew what they had to do and they simply went out and did it," he added.

Rocky Wooster got the Bengals going in the 126-pound division with a pin at 46 seconds of the second period. Jim Holman, an S-C veteran, lost his 132-pound match, giving Glendale a 20-6 margin in the overall points.

But Smith-Cotton got untracked thanks to the help of three sophomores. Dan Barry (138) pinned his opponent with only seven seconds to go in the final period; Clifford Ives earned a 4-3 decision in the 145-pound division, and Jack Hawkins romped over his man 12-5 in the 155-pound division.

Doug Weikal earned a 4-3 decision at 167 and David Neth (185) put the Tigers ahead 26-20, beating his opponent 17-3.

"In spite of the tie, I've got to give them all credit," Buescher said.

The junior varsity Tigers lost 47-13, but had to forfeit the first four weight classes.

The Tigers will travel to Marshall for their next match Tuesday night.

'Cats notch second loop cage victory

WARSAW — Five players, led by Jeff Williams (16) and Lonnie Brown (14) scored in double figures for Warsaw in Tuesday night's 79-45 win over Northwest (Hughesville) in Kaysinger Conference action.

Williams and Brown also led the Wildcats' rebounding attack with 15 caroms apiece.

Warsaw, which also got 10-point efforts from David French, Lanny Greer and Kelly Gregory, moved to 2-1 in the conference standings and evened out their overall mark at 3-3.

Northwest, led in scoring by Steve Schroeder and John Anderson with 12 and 11 respectively, dropped its second league game in as many outings and stands at 2-5 overall.

In the girls varsity game, Northwest prevailed easily, 41-11.

Green Ridge nails Eagles in non-loop

OTTERVILLE — Randy Scotten hit a personal season's high of 20 points and led Green Ridge to a 61-39 victory over Otterville here Tuesday in non-league cage action.

The Tigers, now 5-1, bolted to a 14-4 first-period lead and were never seriously threatened by the Eagles.

Joe Mattingly backed up Scotten's effort with 10 points, while Mark Cole was the only Otterville player to reach double figures with his 12.

Green Ridge made it a sweep of the road doubleheader, capturing the junior varsity opener, 33-28. Jim Mattingly of the Tigers topped all scorers with 14 points. Tommy Glenn and Mitch Grant had 10 apiece for Otterville.

Green Ridge held a strong lead on the boards in the varsity game, 40-27, and hit nearly 50 per cent from the field (27 of 55).

Scoring

Green Ridge (61) — Scotten 20, Mattingly 10, Curtis 9, Rodewald 6, Batrouny 5, Dove 4, Binder 4, Snyder 3.

Otterville (39) — Cole 12, Milazzo 9, Shanahan 8, Smith 6, Eckerle 4.

Montrose hot, cold, but topples Tigers

MONTROSE — Undefeated Montrose rolled up a commanding 39-14 lead over Smithton here Tuesday in non-conference basketball action, but the Tigers roared back in the second half only to pull up 12 points short, 57-45.

Smithton dropped to 2-2 overall with the setback, despite outscoring the Bluejays 17-8 and 14-10 in the third and fourth quarters respectively.

Montrose pushed its undefeated string to six with the help of Mark Swaters and Rick Foster, who combined for 33 of the Jays' points.

Steve Cook was the lone Smithton Tiger in double figures with his 12.

Kyle Antoine netted 13 points and helped the Tigers to a 31-29 overtime win over Montrose in the junior varsity opener. Jeff Brownsberger was the scoring leader for Montrose with his 12.

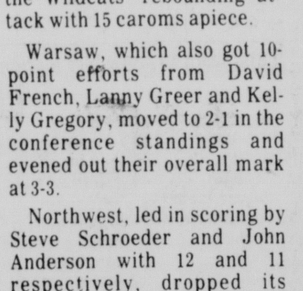

Scoring

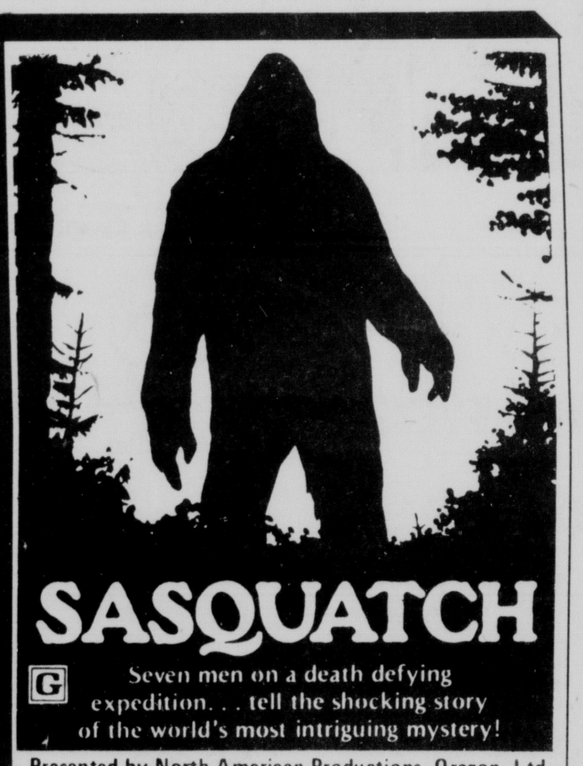

Montrose (57) — Swaters 16, Foster 17, N. Jurgensmeyer 7, Engeman 2, J. Goth 6, K. Jurgensmeyer 2, Weber 2, D. Goth 5.

Smithton (45) — Hays 8, Cook 12, Gregory 6, Griffin 2, Tolliver 8, Gibson 5, Stout 4.

Opening lead — K ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand would represent a considerable challenge to modern bidders. Anyone can look at the North-South cards and find a lot of ways to reach seven hearts. Nevertheless, we feel that if this hand appeared in the final round of the Blue Ribbon pairs, any pair reaching seven hearts would score about 10 match points out of a possible 12.

When it appeared in a rubber bridge game in the British seaside resort of Bognor, the lucky holders had no trouble reaching seven on the bidding shown in the box.

The analysis is interesting. It started with the understanding that a vulnerable three opening guaranteed seven tricks.

North looked at his own four tricks and jumped to six hearts on the theory that when you start with 11 tops you should be able to score 12 by good play.

Then South made a typical 1930 grand-slam bid. He had his seven tricks for his opening three bid, but reasoned that the fact that they consisted of six trumps and a side ace made them a super seven. In addition he was void of clubs.

Seven made easily since South's third diamond went on the ace of clubs and his fourth spade was ruffed in dummy.

The Culbertson was the first artificial four notrump convention. Blackwood replaced it because it was both simpler and better.

Grocery clerk's shopper hints

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for a long time and seen every imaginable kind of complaint against clerks and salespeople. Now it's time you heard from the other side of the counter.

I work in a grocery store — the fruit and vegetable department, to be specific. May I make some suggestions to the public?

Please don't eat any food you haven't paid for. If we can't weigh it we can't charge you for it. The grapes, cherries, plums, apricots and bananas you see are not free samples. They cost US money and we cannot give them to you for nothing.

If the express lane has a limit, don't use it if you have even one item more than is allowed. This gets the checker into trouble and irritates other customers.

Don't try to sack your groceries yourself. Let the sacker or cashier have complete control. They know what they are doing and you don't.

Be polite. Remember discourtesy breeds discourtesy and it breeds best in tired employees. — Love My Job But The People Get On My Nerves

Dear Love: Thanks for a good letter — but I've got a question. How can you love your job if the people get on your nerves? Please answer soon. I'll sign myself — Dyin' To Know

Dear Ann Landers: I ride the bus to work. A very attractive man gets on at the stop after mine. Usually he sits next to me. He smiles, says "Good morning," then starts to read the paper. He glances at the front page, then turns right to your column. Sometimes he chuckles, other times he goes "tsk, tsk."

I don't know if he is married (no wedding ring) but I do know he is a neat dresser, has a marvelous smile and a very pleasant speaking voice.

How can I find out more without being too brazen? — Brown Eyes

Dear Eyes: Your letter may ignite thousands of romances all over the country. Every man who rides the bus will think the girl sitting next to him envisions him as her dreamboat.

The next time he smiles at you and starts to read the paper, simply say, "I see you're reading Ann Landers. What does your wife think of her advice?"

Dear Ann Landers: As a reader who turns to your column every day right after the headlines, I am appalled by the abuse that certain readers throw at you. Time and again, someone with a minor complaint about your accent or your hairdo or your opinions comes on as though you had violated all Ten Commandments. They rage and shout and preach and call you terrible names. What is the matter with these people?

One suspects they are mousy creatures who wouldn't say boo to their boss or spouse but turn into tigers behind the wheel of a car or over the phone or in an anonymous letter — anyplace where they feel safe from retribution.

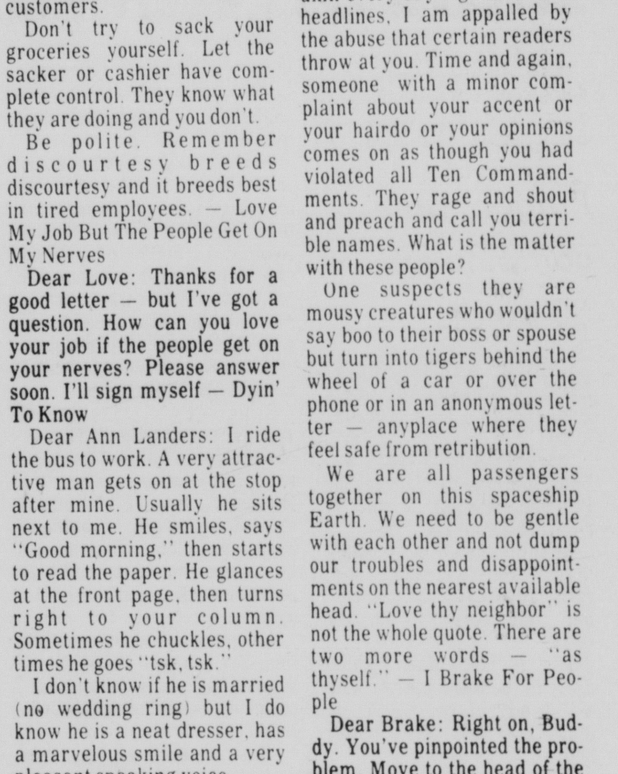

We are all passengers together on this spaceship Earth. We need to be gentle with each other and not dump our troubles and disappointments on the nearest available head. "Love thy neighbor" is not the whole quote. There are two more words — "as thyself." — I Brake For People

Dear Brake: Right on, Buddy. You've pinpointed the problem. Move to the head of the class.

Harley Warrick the last of the Mail Pouch sign painters

EDITOR'S NOTE — Those Mail Pouch signs on the sides of barns that kids on car trips loved to count are disappearing now, and so are the men who once painted them by the thousands. All except Harley Warrick, 51, still plying his trade.

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

BELMONT, Ohio (AP) — Few ever heard of Harley Warrick. His is hardly a household name.

But Harley Warrick has left his imprint along the highways and byways of nine states, and what he has left is symbolic of America in an age of innocence, an agrarian America, an America of penny candy and nickel cigars.

Harley Warrick is the last of the Mail Pouch sign painters.

Surely everyone who has driven through the rolling plains of the midwest or the hills of Appalachia or the mossy lowlands of the South is familiar with his work, an art piece as big as the side of a barn.

CHEW
MAIL POUCH TABACCO
TREAT YOURSELF TO THE BEST

Harley Warrick has painted those words — top line white, middle line yellow, bottom line white, background black — more than 16,000 times on about 10,000 barns.

He has painted so many, in fact, he can do it practically by instinct. He remembers painting some of them with a hangover. Perfect. For a lark, he painted a couple upside down just to startle his boss, then repainted them correctly.

At 51, Warrick seems as much a part of Americana as his work. His face, pipe in mouth, has as much character as his signs. The eyes are blue, the hair slightly gray, the texture of the skin that of a man who does his work outdoors.

Reflecting on his 31 years on the job, Warrick remembers most vividly, and warmly, the crews he worked with.

"The fellows you got acquainted with and worked with them for years," he says. "They've passed on now, but while you're working on these barns, you remember working there before with a certain crew or the guy and you get to thinking about him. You get a lot of memories that way."

Like Harley's fellows, the signs are passing now. He estimates only a thousand left today.

They have become items of nostalgia, sought after by collectors or for reproductions on postcards and paintings.

They were still plentiful in 1945 when Warrick, then a young man of 20, came home from the war, from the Battle of the Bulge, from the 99th Division, to his farm in eastern Ohio.

"We had one on our barn at home," he recalls. "I'd often wondered how in the heck somebody painted one of them things. I'd just been home from the service about two or three days and kind of looking for a job.

"A crew just happened to come along and paint it then, so I was talking to them. They said, 'Well, if you're interested in it, we got an opening here for you. We need a helper on another crew.' So I just went across the road and packed my suitcase and took off."

And that's the way it was for the next 31 years. Warrick, with his four-inch pure bristle brush and homemade paint in hand, traveled through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Warrick estimates there were 10,000 barns with Mail Pouch signs back in the mid 1940s, when there were no interstate highways, no minicities of motels and fast food shops.

At peak, there were eight men painting Mail Pouch signs, four crews of two men each.

Today, there are not enough locations to keep Warrick busy full time. He works only about 16 weeks out of the year, travels half of what he used to, painting not more than 20 new signs a year, repainting those still standing about every five years.

"I don't work steady," he says. "I have a sign shop at home and I do other commercial work."

Bloch points out that, ironically, while the Federal Highway Beautification Act of 1965 killed the barn signs, the 1974 Highway Act designated them "landmark signs" to be preserved.

The fee to the farmer is nominal, anywhere from $1 a year to $20 a year. Many of the farmers are simply interested in getting their barns painted free.

Warrick never had any special training in art.

"Nothing except high school art," he says. "It's just instinct. And you get to where you can do it without thinking. Freehand."

"It's just more or less, you have to, as I call it, eyeball it. You have to see the sign on there before you do it. You know just about where it has to go and everything, where everything has to be placed before you even start on the barn."

Warrick says he paints a dozen signs a year that have no advertising value but are wanted by collectors either on their barns, toolsheds or rooms of homes they have decorated in a rustic setting. The average cost is about $150.

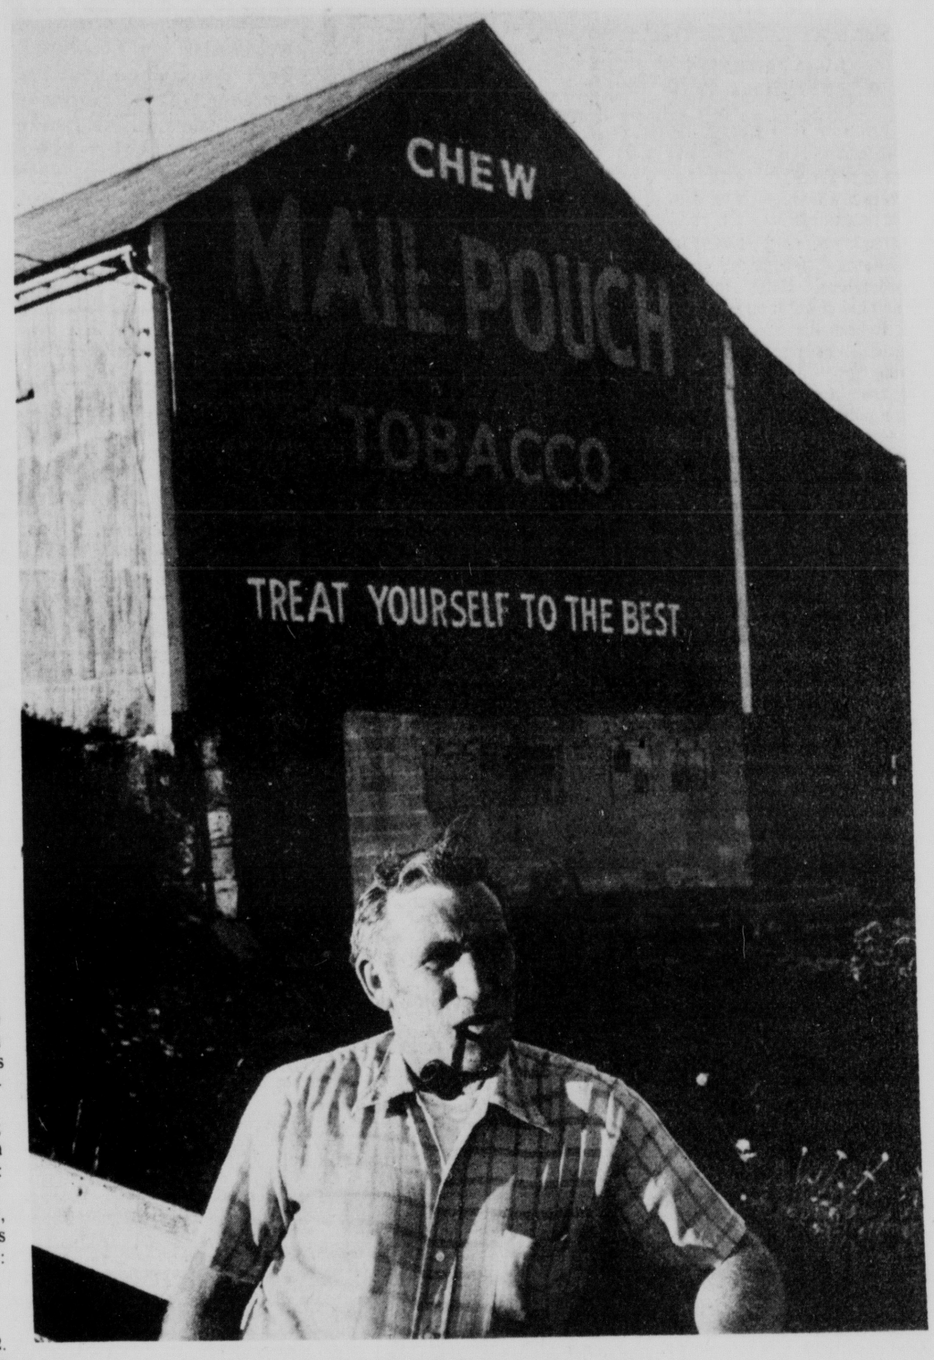

He also has done Mail Pouch signs for commercial establishments such as restaurants to create a rustic look with genuine barn siding. His work is on display in the West Virginia Historical Museum in Charleston. He also does Mail Pouch oil paintings.

The old Bloch Brothers Tobacco Co. merged with General Cigar and Tobacco Co. of New York a year ago, under the corporate umbrella of the Culbro Corp., a conglomerate of tobacco, snack and drug companies. David Weiss, a General Cigar marketing manager, says the use of television and radio advertising for Mail Pouch began about 15 years ago, "moving away from the barns to more modern media."

"It became a little more scientific marketing," he says, "reaching more people more efficiently." But he adds that some barn advertising will continue.

Warrick has no immediate plans to retire.

"It's part of Americana," he says, "and you want to be part of that. So that's why I like to stay with it. You go by old barns you painted years ago and you get to thinking what you were doing at that time and it just brings back memories being there."

Part of Americana

The last of the Mail Pouch sign painters, Harley Warrick, leans on a fence in front of one of his signs at Belmont, Ohio. Since he took on the job in 1945, he's painted more than 16,000 signs on 10,000 barns. Now, at 51, he finds there aren't enough locations to keep him busy fulltime. Some of the signs he paints are for collectors of rustic Americana.

PLYMOUTH VOLARÉ 4-DOOR WAGON.
BIG ON ROOM... SMALL IN PRICE.

$3941*
AMERICA'S NO.1 SELLING WAGON

There are a lot of reasons Volaré Wagon is so big these days. First there's the room. It has more cargo room than any other compact wagon built in America. Volaré even has 85% the load capacity of the average of mid-size wagons.

And speaking of additional room, you'll appreciate Volare's locking optional interior side storage bins. They handle some of the extra gear you never seem to have room for.

24 MPG HWY 17 MPG CITY
EPA estimates †

Secondly, Volaré Wagon is economical. It got 24 mpg on the highway, 17 in the city with its 225 six 2-bbl. engine and manual transmission.

And to top it all off, Volaré Wagon has the best resale value in its class.‡

Wrap all that room and economy together with Volare's nice price, and you've got yourself quite a deal. Stop in and see Volaré Wagon soon.

A large lap

Ten-month-old Erin Foli, Arlington Heights, Ill., is almost engulfed by the dress of the largest hand-crafted rag doll in the world. The mammoth 15-foot tall, 200-pound doll, on exhibit at the Neiman-Marcus store, has 1,300 yards of wool yarn for hair, 18 yards of fabric for the dress, bed sheets for apron and pantaloons and 100 pounds of polyester fiber to fill it.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Yes, jumping rope can be beneficial

Dear Dr. Lamb — I've read that jumping rope for 10 minutes is as good as jogging for half an hour. I am a female, 5 feet 4 and weight 115. I am not overweight, but I am flabby. Will jumping rope firm up my legs, hips, stomach and buttocks? How long do I have to jump rope to see any improvement.

Dear Reader — Skipping or jumping rope can be very vigorous exercise — depending upon your skill and speed. Jogging can be moderate exercise — at a slow pace — or a major effort if you jog at top speed. Considering the variabilities in how you can either jog or skip rope there is no set rule for comparisons.

As a guide though, Dr. Fred Kasch, San Diego State University, points out that you will have to turn the rope about 80 times a minute because of gravity. You can swing it faster but not slower.

At that speed a person will use 12 to 14 times as much oxygen as he would sitting still. This is equivalent to jogging at a rate of a mile each seven or eight minutes. That is a fairly vigorous effort.

The exercise capacity of an average sedentary man is only nine times his resting use of oxygen and for females only seven times the resting use of oxygen. You can get a good training effect with exercise that requires only six times for men and four-and-a-half times for women the resting oxygen use.

All of this means that skipping rope cannot be done at the lower safe levels we recommend for training of unsupervised sedentary people. It is better to improve your physical condition first with other exercises, such as jogging very slowly or fast walking. The rule is train don't strain.

The individual who is conditioned to the point that running a seven or eight minute mile is no unusual stress can safely skip rope as an alternative type of exercise.

The effects of skipping rope will also depend on how you do it. If you jump, from both feet each time, as opposed to stepping over the rope it may increase the use of your lower abdominal muscles. As a rule running, walking and skipping exercises do not work the lower abdominal muscles. You need to do sit-ups and leg-lift type exercises for this effect. These exercises won't help either if your tummy is full of fat. You can't compress the fat inside the abdomen with strong abdominal muscles. You have to empty the abdominal cavity of fat, by weight reduction.

I must also warn would be rope skippers that it is usually hard on the feet. I received a letter from another lady in the same mail with yours. She was distressed because she had damaged her feet. Skipping rope causes you to use the balls of the feet. This may cause the bones to enlarge or cause pain. Be sure you use good shoes if you skip rope. And it is better to do it on a padded floor, such as a good rug. Minimize the jar as much as possible to avoid hurting your feet. Do not skip rope more than four or five minutes at a time when you first start.

TRIM GRASS AND WEEDS with a Spinning Nylon Line

the graswip™

RATED NO. 1 BY CONSUMERS

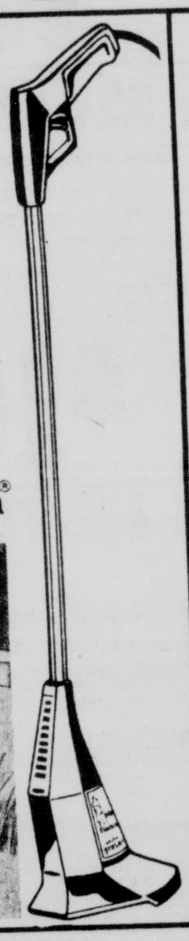

Unique triangular-shaped nylon line cuts grass easier and faster. And — the cord lasts longer. Just slip new cord on and it's ready to use. No clumsy spools to clog with grass and dirt.

Mowers get in trouble near rocks. But not the Graswip. It whips into crevices and the spots which used to be safety zones for grass and weeds.

The Graswip also goes where only rabbits could go — under fences and around trees.

Village Blacksmith®

CUTS GRASS EASILY AND QUICKLY BUT WON'T CUT FINGERS OR TOES.

FOR MEN AND WOMEN

TONES AND TRIMS YOUR HIPS AND WAISTLINE EFFORTLESSLY.
3-in-1 unit features hip hugging accessories and separate overall body massager.

SONGRAND'S EXCLUSIVE DESIGN WORKS THREE WAYS. Weighted belt by itself uses the principle of weight resistance to tone and strengthen abdomen. Electric massager attached to belt or hip attachments helps firm up flabby or loose muscles, helping to slim waistline and hips. Massager easily separates from belt for use as an overall body toner.

Exciting new concept of effortless exercising. Songrand's exclusive design features weighted belt with detachable electric body massager.

The massage-o-belt is made of vinyl compartments scientifically filled with miniature lead pellets. Each section is designed to keep weight uniformly distributed.

World famous athletes like pro basketball super star John Havlicek stay in shape with massage-o-belt.
